Greenwood town manager faces Massachusetts larceny indictment

BO MICHAEL DANIELS

and ALISON ALOISIO

A Massachusetts grand jury has indicted Greenwood Town Manager Lie Lavalette on multiple counts of tarceny, stemming from her previous employment in town government in West Stockbridge, Mass.

Lavalette is Greenwood's first town manager. She was chosen by the selectmen in January of this year and hired in March, following a Town Meeting vote affirming the decision to change to a fownmanager form of government.

Prior to coming here Lavalette had worked 18 y. "in West Stock-bridge, serving as town clerk, treasurer and secretary to the selectmen.

The Massachusetts indictment, handed down in Central Berkshire Superior Court, charges her with 11 counts of grand larceny (over $250), one count of larceny, and one count of larceny by an "ongoing and continuous scheme from Jan. 1, 1989 to Dec. 31, 1994,".

Lavalette could not be reached for comment Tuesday. She did not come to work in the Greenwood Town Office, or call to leave a mes-

The selectmen did an extensive background check on Lavalette, Bartlett said, "since she was going to be the town's first town man-

At least 10 people who were familiar with Lavalette's work were called, Bartlett said, "and there were absolutely no signals of a problem."

Among the West Stockbridge officials vouching for Lavalette were the police chief and chairman of the board of selectmen, Bartlett said.

"The chairman said it would be their loss and our gain, and he called me a month after she began to see how she was doing." Bartlett said. "Now, why would someone do that?"

The chief of police in West Stockbridge wrote a letter that Bartlett characterized as "glowing."

But according to a front page story in Monday's Berkshire Eagle,

Rebel hoopsters look to build on improvement of recent years

The houpsters of Telstar High School -- both boys and girls -showed promise this past weekend with victories in pre-season tournament play. Their coaches hope that success continues when the games that count get under way.

Like last year, the Rebels' strength is quickness, according to coach Mark Thurlow. Add to that a balanced offense. "On any given night any kid could step up and score some points," he said.

10 YEARS OF ARTS IN BETHEL

To the Editor:

Last Saturday evening the Mahoosuc Arts Council presented the Robinson Ballet's performance of "The Nuteracker" in the Helen Berry

As I watched nearly 400 grandparents, parents and children begin the Holiday Season with Tehaikovsky's magical ballet, I thought back to this weekend 10 years ago when the council sponsored its first program: The Mandala Dancers. Thanks to a great deal of volunteer effort, combined with support from Gould Academy and six Founding Sponsors, the Mahoosuc Arts Council began with that memorable program on Nov. 22, 1986.

Since that time, the council has presented over 250 evening per-formances and in-school assemblies, provided performance opportunities for over 650 individual artists and touched the lives of thousands of adult, family and student audiences.

Mahoosue Ans strives to make the arts accessible by keeping ticket prices as low as possible even though revenue from ticket sales covers less than half the actual cost of presenting a performance such as The Nuteracker, 'The council's educational program has been able to provide $2 in value for every $1 budgeted by SAD44. Annual fundraising projects, individual memberships, and business sponsorships help to support other cultural events sponsored in cooperation with community organizations such as: the Historical Society's Fourth of July picnic. the Chamber's Art Fair, the Bethel Bicentennial Committee's parade, and Andover Olde Home Days. In addition, the council served as the temprorii umbrella organization for the Bethel Gazebo project.

None of this would be possible without the tireless leadership of Mahaosuc Arts executive director Vicki Rackliffe, the voluntary efforts of anategous Mahoosuc Arts committee members and general financial support from individuals and businesses in the communities of SAD44. The next Mahoosuc program is scheduled for Sunday. Dec. 8 -- the Messiah Sing will begin at 4 p.m. in the West Parish Congregational Church in Bethel. A Messiah rehearsal will precede the concert at 3 gron. New you though

CAN'T TRUST GOULD WITH THIS PIECE OF HISTORY

To the Editor:

An unwritten rule in the historical profession is never trust to schools and religious institutions valuable historical resources and materials. There are some noteworthy exceptions to this bit of wisdom, but all too often historical "treasures" in their hands fall victim to the vagaries of changing personal priorities and values and are lost due to neglect, wanton destruction and/or under the auctioneer's gavel.

One of the historical resources frequently overlooked in the midst of this flux is the architectural integrity of specific buildings. Bethel is about to experience a change to Gould Academy's Gehring Hall, a National Register property, which is, in my opinion, the outstanding building in town for its period and one of the premier academic structures in the entire state.

Having served on the Gould Board of Trustees for six years, I am keenly aware of the need for a new dining foom and the difficulty of finding the best possible space for it. The proposal made at the last meeting of the Bethel Planning Board was, in my view, not the best possible choice. It still does not address the traffic congestion at Gould, does not provide any additional parking, does not remove the sound of delivery trucks from Gehring residents' hearing, and creates a structure near Gehring that unsympathetically alters the views one has of this handsome building. To add insult to injury, there is the next phase where Gehring is gutteand a glass jut is added to the athletic field end of the building to enclose the staircase, further compromisi v the building's architectural integrity. This phase is not before the Planning Board at this time, but does directly relate to the new building. If a stairway is needed, a way should be found to place it on the opposite end of the building, which is much less obvious, and would not so seriously detract from its integrity. If this is done, however, it would have an impact on the road to the proposed new dining facility.

I certainly realize that along with death and taxes, change is also one of the certainties of life. I know Gehring's interior needs to be modernized. I have no problem with that as long as it does not visibly affect its exterior. I also know that other buildings are often built near architectural "gems." Good architectural planning and design should enhance and compliment existing structures and ameliorate the situation as to noise, traffic. parking, etc. This plan does none of these.

Gould is working with some talented people to develop these plans. I strongly urge that they be sent back to the drawing boards and not leave us with a proposal that is, in my opinion, seriously flawed.

The Planning Board will hold a public hearing on this issue on Dec. 11 at 6 p.m. at Telstar High School. I urge those interested in learning more about this project to attend.

MORE ON STOPPING TELEMARKETING CALLS

To the Editor:

Your recent item on direct marketing in your column, titled "How To Cut Off Telemarketers," (Nov. 6, 1996) omitted some important information that may be valuable to your readers.

In most cases, telephone solicitations are the result of an existing relationship the consumer has established with an organization. In other instances, the calls may be from organizations that are similar to those the consamer has purchased from or contributed to in the past. Effective telephone marketing relies upon targeting those consumers who would be likely to have an interest in the particular product being offered.

Consumers can control the marketing phone calls they receive in their homes from national telemarketers. Apart from contacting the Direct Marketing Association's Telephone Preference Service, the consumer can request to be placed on a "do not call" list, and the telemarketer must oblige by law to not call the consumer again for up to one year. Nonprofit groups and political organizations are exempt from this law.

For those consumers who wish not to receive telephone sales calls, they may contact DMA's Telephone Preference Service (TPS) as mentioned in the news item. This free service deletes consumer names from most national telephone sales lists. Consumers should be sure to state their complete name, address, and telephone number, including area code. TPS will not affect sequentially dialed computerized calls or calls from local organizations. If consumers do not wish to be called by local organizations, the consumer may want to contact them directly.

The Legislator Muster

By MIKE BROWN

As members of Maine's 118th Legislature gather in the State House, the 186 representatives and senators should reflect on the tasks before them for they are all under interim indictment, or as British statesman and political writer Edmund Burke said some 200 years ago, "In all forms of government, the people is the true legislator."

Modern-day legislators tend to gather at the shallow end of the legislative pool despite the coaxing of their electors to venture into the deeper end of public responsibility. And those responsibilities are

No bill can be passed, no statute written, no fee, no tax, no bond obligation can be committed to the financial obligation of the people of Maine without the majority, and sometimes a majority plus a third vote of Maine's 186 legislators. And that includes those initiatives in genesis from the executive branch of this government for the fundamental body of constitutions limits the arbitrary power of the head of state thus preventing a despotism or autocracy. And these decisions will be popular and un-popular, hurtful and helpful, to every citizen of the state. But legislators cannot escape the necessity that the decisions of government and oversight of bureaucracy is theirs and theirs alone for the next two years. The people voted to pledge their confidence to the victors and they must now stand

The tasks before legislators are immensely complex. Revenues are finite unless the legislators chose to increase them by adding new taxes or climinating programs. Compassion and reason should prevail in decisions concerning those citizens who cannot viably help themselves, those citizens who are our wards, but citizen-equal Legislators face the task of determining the role and size of the bureaucracy, literally a government within a government. Probably more people criticize the bureaucracy than any other institution of government. But there are reasons and foremost is that bureaucrats are unrepresentative of the population they supposedly serve and very often ally themselves with special interests -- the ubiquitous lobbyists that legislators find milling and mingling among them in the halls of government.

The bureaucracy which will do the working walk for legislators is becoming more the icon octopi of government and it suffers from inertia and incompetence. It will be the task of Maine legislators to devise the basic menu for its bureaucracy.

Exacerbating the state bureaucracy obesity is the federal bureaucratic invasion and growing usurpation of the state's sovereignty. Sovereign is purposely written in the preamble to the Maine Constitution, but its reference is solely to God, not to the "free and independent State" which is also included in the preamble.

Maine and its sister states cannot in these times of sustainable monetary necessity exist without federal intervention and redistribution of federal funds gathered from the endeavors of states' citizens in the first place. But the federal congresses balt the distribution hook with our own dollars. And our federally elected surrogates permit the enlarging existence of the congressional fish bowl.

It will be the responsibility of Maine's new legislature to set reasonable catch and length limits for

If the tasks of legislators are overwhelming so also are the rewards. Legislators will mix with their kind from the length and breath of this state. They will be made aware of provincial attitudes and problems. They will be lobbied and pressured from tens of competing camps of special interests which should add knowledge to their decisions. Representatives of the people are the cornerstone of the constitutional democracy of states and country. Hopefully, our Maine legislators will carry that power with dignity and humility with them as they embark on their two-year journey which will leave this land of Dirigo solvent and comfortable on the threshold of a new millennium.

The donation was made in support of the Heritage Park Trust's Capital Campaign to establish a historic museum, interactive learning center, reproduction of an authentic logging camp interpretive trails, and educational and arts outreach programs. N.H. forest practices manual drafted CONCORD, N.H.--The Society for the Protection of New Hampshire Forests announced last week that a draft of a 100-plus-page Recommended Voluntary Forest Management Practices manual has been released, according to the Coos County Democrat. Tammara Van Ryn of the SPNHF administered the project cooperatively with the New Hampshire Timberland Owners Association and the state Department of Fish and Game and the Division of Forests and Lands. The Northern Forest Lands Council recommended drafting such a manual in each of the four states in the Northern Forest (New Hampshire, Maine, Vermont and New York). Public comment on the draft will now be sought.

New Englanders plan Colo. ski resort

LUDLOW, Vt .-- Investors from Vermont and New Hampshire have joined with the owners of the Okemo resort in Ludlow in a deal to start a new ski resort in Colorado. Lyman Orton, president of the Vermont Country Store Inc.; Harvey D. Hill, publisher of the Claremont, N.H. Eagle-Times newspaper; and Roland Scott, owner of Whitney Bl. Co. of Bellows Falls have joined Okemo owners Timothy and Diane M. eller in a company called Okemo Limited Liability Co. The Muellers finalized a deal last month to buy 3, 266 acres of land in Steamboat Springs, Colo. tor the proposed Lake Catamount Resort. The new resort would be about seven miles from the existing Steamboat ski area, which is one of the busiest in Colorado. Okemo is the third busiest area in Vermont.

Trapped animal may be a wolf

AUGUSTA--Biologists are awaiting DNA test results that could determine whether an 81-pound animal caught by an eastern Maine trapper is a wolf. The Hancock man thought the animal was a large coyote and he turned it over to wildlife biologists. If tissue samples confirm the 4-foot-long animal is an eastern timber wolf, it would provide further evidence that the species, long gone from Maine, is returning. "We are not certain of the species; it appears to be either a dog-wolf hybrid or a wolf," state biologists said after examining the animal and submitting tissue samples for DNA analysis. Timber wolves, which once ranged most of the United States, disappeared from Maine long ago as forests were cut and humans killed the wolves that remained. But even if wolves are returning to Maine, experts say, it could be decades before any noticeable population appears. Coyotes first showed up in small numbers in Maine in the 1920s, but it wasn't until the '50s that they started appearing in significant numbers.

New wolf initiative planned

ALBANY, N.Y.--Conservationists meeting at a "Wolves in America" conference have opened a campaign to bring eastern timber wolves back to New York, northern Coos County in New Hampshire and two large areas of Maine, according to a report in the Coos County Democrat. The RESTORE: The North Woods appears to be the lead environmental group working to bring the animals back to New Hampshire and Maine. An environmental impact study is expected to be the next step, with wolves possibly reintroduced into the two northern states within four or five years.

Rural development funds cut

BANGOR--Loan and grant funds to very low and low-income people living in the rural areas of Maine to purchase and/or repair their homes have been significantly reduced for the government's 1997 fiscal year, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Last year the state was allocated $9,344,000 for Rural Housing Service direct single-family loans. Because other states did not spend all of the funds allocated to them, Maine was able to approve $15.5 million in loans. This year Maine has received an allocation of $4.9 million, a reduction of 48 percent. As a result, many rural Mainers will not be able to finance their homes through the federal program.

Mississippi bike trail planned

ST. LOUIS--Missouri cyclists soon could have a safe and picturesque way to wheel along the Mississippi River. The Mississippi River Trail, a bicycle route stretching through seven states, is slated to open a route from Missouri to Memphis, Tenn., by next year. The trail, sponsored by the nonprofit Lower Mississippi Delta Development Center, is not a construction project. Instead, it is an effort to mark bicycle-friendly paths that already exist in the southern Mississippi River states. Special "MRT" signs will indicate safe state roads, low-traffic country roads and existing bike trails along a 2,000-mile path from Ste. Genevieve through Illinois, Tennessee, Kentucky, Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana. The Missouri Department of Transportation plans to spend about $15,000 to place 400 signs along the trail. Organizers say it will run from Ste. Genevieve through the Missouri counties of Perry, Cape Girardeau, Scott and Mississippi.

Boiler fire shuts down Crescent Park

By ALISON ALOISIO

Students at Crescent Park Elementary School got an unexpected day off Tuesday, thanks to a boiler fire at the school.

At about 6:40 a.m., custodian Carol Crockett noticed a hot smell as she was standing in the building corridor, according to principal David Murphy.

She and other custodians checked the boiler room and discovered one side of the boiler had burned off. There was some smoke and there appeared to have been a small flame, Murphy said.
The custodians immediately shut down the heating system and pulled the fire alarm.

The Bethel Fire Department responded quickly, Murphy said. Fire Chief Jim Young said there apparently was a small backdraft fire, and firefighters used "a little bit of fire extinguisher" to make sure it was out. The trucks left within 10 minutes of arriving, he said.

Murphy expected repairs to the boiler would be made Tuesday, allowing school to resume WednesHe said school was cancelled

Tuesday because heat in the building was lost, not because of the fire

Because of the timing of the fire, TV and radio stations could not be notified of the school cancellation. Murphy said phone trees were set up to alert parents, and busses were radioed not to pick up elementary students. The system apparently worked very well.

"Not one student showed up," Murphy said.

West Stockbridge had chronic financial-mismanagement problems while Lavalette worked there.

In February, with the Greenwood position apparently on the way, she announced her intention to resign effective April 15.

But in early March she was reportedly asked by town officials to leave immediately -- after an audit revealed money missing from town accounts. In recent years West Stockbridge had been "mired in financial dif-ficulties," The Eagle reported, and a May report by the Massachusetts Department of Revenue, "chronicled serious and persistent financial problems." Neither the West Stockbridge selectmen nor the Berkshire County District Attorney would reveal how much money is missing, according to newspaper reports.

Lavalette is expected to be summonsed to court in Pittsfield and arraigned at a later date.

Bartlett said she planned to talk to town attorney Geoffrey Hole regarding whether a town audit is called for. She said a regular audit is due shortly, anyway.

The selectmen's regular meeting was scheduled for last night (Tuesday), at which time, Bartlett said, she expected them to discuss the situation.

Deputy Town Clerk Penny Bedard said she "couldn't believe the charges" against Lavalette. "I've worked with her every day. She's always trying to find a way to save the town money," Bedard said.

Asked if she had any suspicions regarding Lavalette's handling of town finances, Bedard said, "No -none whatsoever.'

Norm Lewis is the game warden covering the Woodstock area. He said he did not receive a complaint from the police the day of the incident, and was surprised that no else had called if a large number of people saw the animal.

After hearing about the fox from Gray, Lewis did drive the neighborhood the next day -- and for a week afterward -- but never saw the fox. He said he later got a third-hand report the animal had been found dead, but could not confirm it. Gray was asked what people might do themselves regarding suspicious animals in the absence of a warden. He suggested that they alert their neighbors. And, he said, "if there's a hunter in the area, I don't have a problem with them disposing of the animal themselves. I'd rather have them do that than have a kid or an animal get bitten."

Lewis agreed, saying people should feel free to dispose of a suspicious animal if they can do it safely. "If it's there and it doesn't act right, we prefer you dispose of it," he said. The animal should then be buried, and the warden service notified.

Officials now consider the rabies problem, which has spread through much of the southern part of the state, to be of epidemic proportions.

Poland has no plans to get another puppy soon, despite friends' suggestions that she do.

"I don't get over things easily," she said. "I had another lab I lost five years ago, and it took me that Besides the loss of her pet, it will take her some time to get over the circumstances, too. "I've lived here 40 years," she said, "I've never, ever had something like this hap-

Thurlow expects good point production from starting guards Buker and Koch. On defense, "they've got to use their quickness," he said.

The team plays with more intensity than last year -- a result, Thurlow believes, of experience. He's hopeful about the Rebels' chances for making it to another tournament -- the playoffs at the end of the season.

"They're a good group of kids.
They know what it takes to make the playoffs. I think they expect they will make it," said Thurlow.
The team made it to post-season play last year for only the second time in school history, posting a Mountain Valley Conference record of 5-11. They lost in the first round to Traip Academy.

Thurlow describes this year's conference as balanced. It includes three new teams -- Boothbay, Hall-Dale and Georges Valley, Boothbay and Mountain Valley high schools are expected to be the teams to beat.

Coach Ray Seames' lady Rebels played respectably in a tournament defense, he said. at Oxford Hills this weekend -despite being struck by a team flu

Telstar, competing with a total of eight players available, beat Class B school Gray-New Gloucester in a 25-minute mini-game format. Although the Rebels lost the other games, they still played impressively, Seames said.

This year's varsity squad has 10 players, divided evenly between seniors and sophomores: seniors Jana Mason (forward/center), Dareth Howard (forward), Sarah Richardson (point guard), Sarah Seames (guard), Beth Howe (guard); sophomores Erin Osgood (forward/guard), Casey Brown (forward), Mandy Berry (forward), Emily Phillips (guard) and Jenn Stevens (center), Howe and Richardson are proven scorers, Seames said. Howe was among the top 10 scorers in the conference all season last year, while Richardson was there most of the time. "They were consistently in double figures," said Seames.

Sarah Seames is the leader on Last year's Rebels had a 4-12 conference record. "They're a much better team this year, with a lot more experience," Seames said. Four of the seniors, he said, have played together since middle school.

And overall, he said, the team is bigger and taller than last year's edition. They've been getting more rebounds in the pre-season, and that's promising," he said.

He describes this season's Mountain Valley Conference as solit into two tiers, with Dirigo, Madison, Winthrop and Mt. Abram likely the top teams.

What would it take for the Rebels to make the playoffs? 'We'd have to take care of the ball - turnovers have been our downfall in the past," he said. "And we'd have to beat at least one quality team.'

Lorraine Mills

Well, Thanksgiving is over so it's on to Christmas. We were sort of hoping Ralph could make it home this year, but because of his finger and all the time lost at work because of that, and car problems, he decided Christmas was the earliest he could make it. The weather didn't help. The storms may turn the world into a fairyland as far as looks are concerned, but it's more like a nightmare on Elm Street when it comes to traveling, especially through the White Mountains, Of course he also received a couple invitations to dinner, one on Thursday and one on Sunday, which may have influenced his decision!

This has been a quiet week compared to last week when I was out of town more than I was in it -- no, not really, it just seemed that way. I'm glad I didn't have to travel this week. I'm always glad for snow at Christmas, but December is as early as I care to see it. The animals seem to enjoy the crisp air, but it has sort of curtailed our walks with Poochie and Lucy, which has Poochie chomping at the bit. Lucy had just as soon hug the fire, so to speak, but she doesn't want Poochie out of her sight, so wherever he goes she goes. I haven't figured out if she thinks she's his mother, his nursemaid or his keeper.

Rick Boucher, who owns the bike shop in Locke Mills, was Greenstock's winner this week.

Donna Downs, who used to live in Bryant Pond taking care of her mother, Elvira Littlehale, and who now lives in Pembroke, N.H., reports her husband Ted is now a permanent resident in a nursing home near there. It must be quite lonely for her after having such a busy, active life just three years ago. No one knows better than I how much things can change in a short space of time.

I can't believe I actually got a dinner on Thanksgiving where nothing was burned, late or forgotten. The only mishap was when one of the cats tried to join us and as I endeavored to stop her she tipped over the roll basket and scampered off wearing the cloth I had put over the rolls to keep them warm. Quite becoming it was, too.

That's some of the doings in Locke Mills. I'm always in need of news, so please call with yours.

Community Messiah Sing

The Mahoosuc Arts Council invites the community to a performance of Handel's Messiah Sing on Sunday, Dec. 8, at 4 p.m. at the West Parish Congregational Church on Church Street, Bethel. Handel's Messiah, a Christmas favorite, is an oratorio written in three parts and includes the rousing Hallelujah Chorus. This community sing has been brought back by popular request. The chorus will be under the direction of Jonathan Smith and will be accompanied by Faye Smith and Mary Valentine.

Members of the community are welcome to participate by enjoying the performance as audience members or by singing in the chorus. Optional rehearsals for the chorus are from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. on Dec. 8 at the church. Singers should bring a chorus book if they own one. Donations for the Messiah Sing will be accepted at the door.

FROM THE

Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce

From all reports, the kickoff to the pre-holiday shop local campaign went very well. Friday evening the streets were filled with shoppers taking advantage of the many shops and businesses that stayed open. The hayrides, generously sponsored by Key Bank and provided by Tim and JoAnn Korhonen, were very popular. Many thanks to Carole Duplessia of Book Corner Forms the did a mostly advantage of Book Corner Forms the did a mostly advantage. Duplessis of Pooh Corner Farm who did wreath-making demonstrations at the Bethel Bagel, and to Edie Okenquist for providing the space

We hope everyone will take full advantage of the events scheduled for this coming weekend: "The Country Christmas in Bethel Weekend." Please see the full calendar by the Holiday shopping guide "Support Your Town, Don't Shop Around."

The Bethel Common and Main Street are looking beautiful thanks to the efforts of several volunteers last week. Carole Duplessis and helpers Nancy and Joe persevered through a day of rain to hang the beautiful Christmas swags on all the Main Street poles. Carole also decorated the gazebo with balsam roping and ribbons and erected 14 Christmas trees around the common. Telstar High School teachers Sarah Craig and Scott Sweat brought seven students with them on Wednesday to help volunteer Freda Davis and chamber director Robin Zinchuk decorate the trees with white pin lights. Many thanks to all these fine community volunteers for their efforts and time.

Members and friends are reminded and invited to the chamber holiday social to be held on Sunday, Dec. 15, from 5 to 7 p.m. at the School in Auburn.

The wedding will take place on May 17, 1997.

"At the Family Birthplace, 'special care' happens all the time."

-Robyn McInnis, L.P.N.

Robyn is one of the highly skilled staff who are prepared to give your new baby any special care he or she may need-from a brief stay in the isolette to a few days of round the clock observation. And in the rare case of serious complications, a specialized transport team from Maine Medical Center will come right to your bedside at the Family Birthplace at Stephens Memorial Hospital.

Even if everything goes perfectly smoothly, we'll still provide your baby with a special kind of care. Long before the big day, we get to know Mom, the family, and the particulars of the pregnancy. So when you arrive at the hospital, you won't feel like strangers.

If you'd like to make sure your baby receives special care no matter what the circumstances, call one of the physician practices listed
